The Best Roosevelt Book of All

WALT MASON in the "Emporia Gazette" says:

"In the estimation of the Gazette, Mr. McCutcheon is one of the greatest of cartoonists of any country or any age. He is a marvel to those who follow his work regularly. His idea appeals to you at once and it is always a good, original idea. No one else can make such funny, ridiculous figures. He can make a picture of a man's back so expressive that it will drive away your attack of blues.

"It was a proud day for Colonel Roosevelt when he returned to his native land and the tributes he received were numerous, but none of them should afford him more gratification than this book of pictures by John McCutcheon.

The Garden of Fate

By ROY NORTON

Illustrations by HARRISON FISHER and JOSEPH CLEMENT COLL

The Garden of Fate is a big novel—a novel over which author and publisher may justly be proud.

Roy Norton has contributed to practically every large magazine in America, but in "The Garden of Fate" he has done his first important book. He lays his scenes in the Morocco of to-day, and has taken for the model of his principal character one of the greatest soldiers of fortune who ever lived.

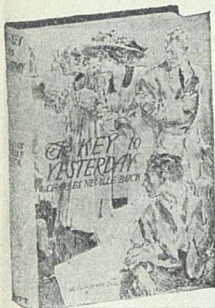

If you want action and adventure you'll find it here; if you want love interest, the dark secretive atmosphere of the Orient and excellent character drawing, you'll find those also; and as for humor, you'll laugh and chuckle over the quaint sayings and western drawl of The Honorable Bob.

The Key to Yesterday

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

After reading the manuscript of "THE KEY TO YESTERDAY," our main reviewer wrote us as follows:

"I congratulate you on 'The Key to Yesterday' as a book, and on Mr. Buck as an author; you have winners in both. If you can imagine one book that contains a love story that will equal the best of Robert Chambers, a story of adventure as good as 'Soldiers of Fortune,' and a story that has the mystery that made 'The Masquerader' such a success, and YET A STORY THAT IS TOTALLY UNLIKE ANY OF THESE, you have a fair idea of 'The Key to Yesterday.'

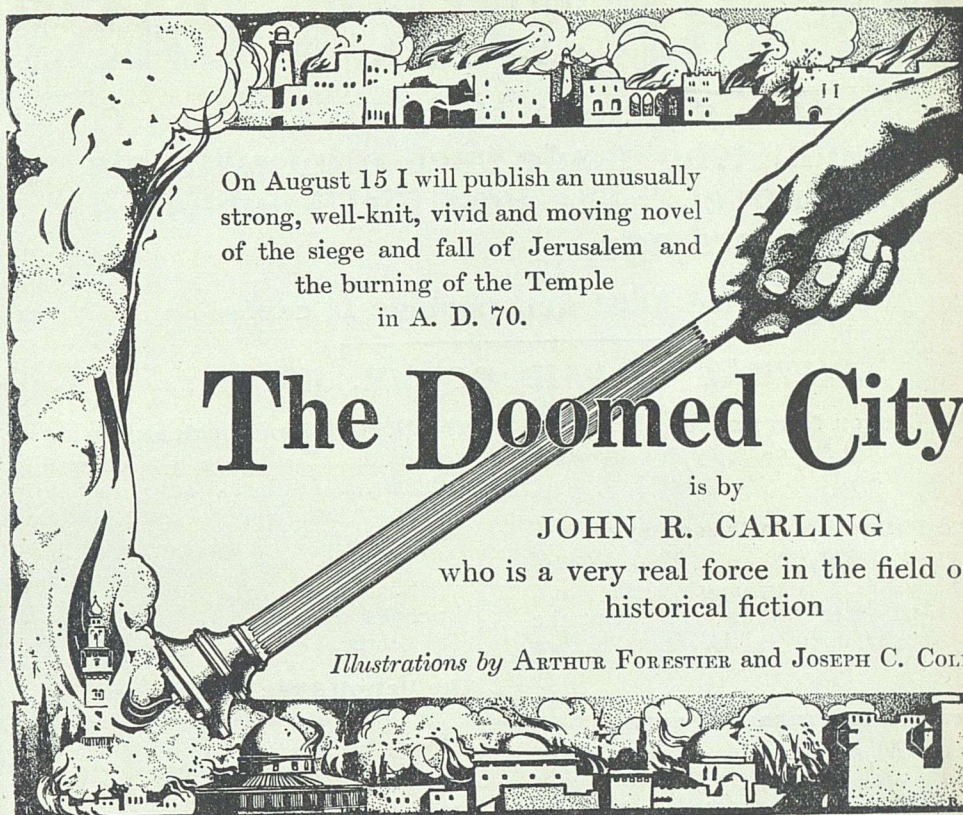

By all means publish this book!"

We're enthusiastic about "THE KEY TO YESTERDAY," and we feel that you will be equally so as soon as you have read it.

Another "Quo Vadis"

On August 15 I will publish an unusually strong, well-knit, vivid and moving novel of the siege and fall of Jerusalem and the burning of the Temple in A. D. 70.

The Doomed City

is by

who is a very real force in the field of historical fiction

Illustrations by ARTHUR FORESTIER and JOSEPH C. COLL

THIS powerful story gives expression to that vastly significant period of Jewish decadence and dispersion which followed within forty years the crucifixion of Jesus—a time that was full of incident and color, dramatic and passionate to an unusual degree, but of which very little has been popularly known.

Here is not only a rich find for every lover of the historical novel, especially that which mirrors ancient manners and events, but for all Jewish and Christian people as well. For the adherents of both of these great faiths this book—THE DOOMED CITY—will throw a searching light on a time of great and intimate importance to them : : : :

THE DOCTOR'S LASS

Another delicious story by Edward C. Booth, who made such a hit with his first novel, "The Post Girl," published two years ago.

WHAT IS SAID OF MR. BOOTH:

The London News says:

Mr. Booth attracts by his insistent humor.

The Philadelphia Press says:

Undoubtedly, there is an affinity between this young writer and William de Morgan . . . but the younger man is the finer literary artist.

The Boston Transcript says:

A passion for truth, a knowledge of life, and a feeling for nature both animate and inanimate are mingled in him with a very strong imaginative sense.

The Hull (England) Mail says:

Mr. Booth is tender, truthful, and convincing; and his chapters have a dewy and soothing freshness as far removed from the gross realism of some writers on rural life as the sun-kissed hills from the middens of the farm-yard.

The Syracuse Herald says:

He has much of Barrie's humor, together with a story-telling skill that is all his own.

The Cleveland Leader says:

It's a fine, foolish, young, vital, joyous talent that this Booth possesses.

The Norfolk Landmark says

Mr. Booth writes with a charming fluency and diffusion, rare in modern fiction; and likened aptly to the quality which has given the novels of William de Morgan their grip on public favor. His style is full of richness and the indescribable finesse of genius.

The Detroit Free Press says:

Here is a man who can be tender and sweet without laying himself open to the imputation of being soft.

The New York Evening Mail says:

An author of force and power who can carry the reader over large areas of words, with sustained interest.

The Chicago Dial says:

He has a manner almost Meredithian in its richness, but without the Meredithian asperity.

The Salt Lake City Inter-mountain says:

There are passages in Dickens where the mirth bubbles and sings so close to the pathos that one yields to the fascination of the master's charm, and laughs with utter delight in the perfection of it. But this man Booth crowds one incident on another in the developing of his story until an evening's reading is a perfect feast of literary beauty.

THE NOVEL OF 1910

The GLOBE says:—"One has almost come to regard Messrs. Mills & Boon as the publishers of the unexpected. Alike in fiction and in more serious works they introduce us to writers of exceptional ability, and to subjects of uncommon interest with a facility which has induced the reviewer to open any book bearing their name with a sense of pleasurable expectancy."

DAILY CHRONICLE.—"The Rajah's People' is the best Indian novel that we have read since 'On the Face of the Waters.'"

THE RAJAH'S PEOPLE

By I. A. R. WYLIE.

With Three Illustrations by IVO PUHONNY.

Crown 8vo, 6s.

FOURTH EDITION.

MILLS & BOON'S successor to their previous brilliant first-novel success by E. S. Stevens, "The Veil," "THE RAJAH'S PEOPLE." 1st, 2nd, and 3rd Editions exhausted. 4th Edition rapidly selling. The Novel of 1910.

Globe.—"It is a real pleasure to be able to say of a new novelist that with his first novel he has achieved, if not greatness, the next best thing, the right to be reckoned among the best of his contemporaries. In 'The Rajah's People' Mr. Wylie has given us a work inspired by sincerity of thought and purpose, and written with a real gift for suggesting 'atmosphere' and for deftly weaving the intricate web of a fine romance.

Mr. Wylie's novel is undoubtedly one to be read. It has freshness of outlook, a well-conceived plot, and a firm hold on the essentials of humanity. Its central figure, the young Rajah, is a picturesque and dominating one, and the group of English men and women at Merut are well drawn and ably differentiated. One instinctively turns, however, to that central character whose confidence in the rulers of his country is abused, and made the instrument of avarice by a scamp who tarnishes the fair fame of England. He is an unforgettable figure, alike in his days of dreams, and in that awakening when he proclaims that 'a great people must rule mine,' and 'great things are expected of a great people.'"

Observer.—"A remarkable novel."

Sussex Daily News.—"A remarkable novel."

Morning Leader.—"There are all the qualities here of a notable novel. It has action, which the reader likes; imagination, which the reviewer likes; and length, which the libraries like. Plainly, the writer should have a career."

World.—"I. A. R. Wylie has made in 'The Rajah's People' a very noticeable addition to the excellent fiction written by those who have heard 'the East a-calling' to some purpose."

Daily Chronicle.—"The Rajah's People' is the best Indian novel that we have read since 'On the Face of the Waters.' It is powerful and thrilling, yet throughout there is a restraint and grasp of the situation that suggest the practised hand rather than that of the novice. Mr. Wylie must write other novels, which we hope it will be our good fortune to review."

Liverpool Daily Post.—"Quite one of the best and certainly one of the most entertaining stories of Indian life published for some time. 'The Rajah's People' is a remarkable first novel."

Daily Mail.—"Entirely successful."

Athenæum.—"Undeniably exciting."

Queen.—"Fraught with dramatic situations from the first page to the last."

Hearth and Home.—"Full of human interest."

Daily News.—"The author must be congratulated on the great gift of interesting her readers."

Manchester Courier.—"A remarkable tour de force. Thrilling, surprising, and excellent."

Daily Mirror.—"A most exciting and original story."

Outlook.—"A fine dramatic story."

Scotsman.—"A strong, sound, capable piece of work."

NOTES IN SEASON.

JOHN R. CARLING's stirring novel of the siege and fall of Jerusalem, "The Doomed City," published next week by Clode, is said to have a power and richness of coloring that go far toward making it another "Quo Vadis."

THOMAS NELSON & SONS give the judges' report on their Bible competition in their advertisement in this issue, to which we call special attention. The results of the competition have been very gratifying, and prove that booksellers take keen interest in the distribution and sale of Bibles.

CUPPLES & LEON COMPANY are bringing out "Good Manners For All Occasions," by Margaret E. Sangster; "A Patriotic Jubilee," by Sara Tawney Lefferts; "Health and Beauty Hints," by Margaret Mixer; and "Buster Brown on His Travels" will be added to the Famous Comic Books. The Excelsior Art Series will be an entirely new line of eighteen titles, and the New Eureka Art Series will also have eighteen especially picked titles; nine titles are also added to the successful Boys and Girls Series.

THE CENTURY COMPANY announce for publication, August 20th, "The Doctor's Lass," by Edward C. Booth, author of "The Post-Girl." One paper in reviewing Mr. Booth's earlier story says, "Here is a man who can be tender and sweet without laying himself open to the imputation of being soft." With the tenderness are a combined force and power which will make this new book, the publishers believe, quite as successful as "The Post-Girl."

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY have just ready a new book by Theodore Roberts, author of "Red Feathers," "A Cavalier of Virginia," etc. The title of this last story is "Comrades of the Trails," the adventures, hair-breadth escapes, and riot of action will appeal to the hearts of all boy readers. Charles Livingston Bull has made six full-page illustrations as well as decorative end leaves and minor decorations for the book.

WITH the September issue, out next week, The Smart Set will be enlarged to 176 pages, and will have a new departure in a long novel published serially. Heretofore it has been its policy to print complete stories and a novelette only. Its first serial will be by E. Phillips Oppenheim, the ever-popular writer. His story will be called "Havoc," and will run through six or seven issues. Other authors to contribute to that issue will be Wyndham Martin, who will contribute the novelette, "Daphne" (the novelette feature of Smart Set will be continued as before), Gouverneur Morris, and Van Tassel Sutphen. Smart Set's circulation is mounting rapidly; the increased size will give it a new impetus.

G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY, New York, call attention to a list of ten books to be issued by them, August 10. "John Marsh's Millions," by Charles Klein and Arthur Hornblow, authors of "The Lion and the Mouse," heads the list. Then come "New Faces," by Myra Kelly, a volume containing eight of her last stories; "The House on Stilts," by R. H. Hazard, who has told a thrilling and sensational story, full of action; a breezy tale by William M. Raine called "Bucky O'Connor"; Fergus Hume's new detective story, "The Peacock of Jewels"; "The Country Boy," by Homer Davenport, the cartoonist, who here tells the story of his own early life; "The Spendthrift," novelized from the popular play by Edward Marshall; Edward Marshall and Charles T. Dazey's "The Old Flute Player," the story which was awarded first prize at the Actors' Fund Fair; "If David Knew," by Frances Aymar Mathews; and "The Double Cross," a tale of love and adventure in Mexico, by Gilson Willets.

By the author of "From talk to text," "Arrows, or teaching as a fine art," etc. The author encourages and aims to help the putting of our religious beliefs to the test of every day use, and of our doing this in as thoroughly a business-like way as the farmer does his farming, or the trader his "trading." The book shows how obedient, unquestioning trust makes us strong to do otherwise impossible duties, to bear otherwise insupportable trials—ever "free, indeed, to go back, but ever rejoicing to go on." The volume will be found most stimulating and helpful to the practice of the Christian life.

Again the author of "Mistress Joy," "Return," etc., tells a story of the Tennessee mountaineers. The heroine is born amidst most unpromising surroundings, but, being ambitious, manages to get some schooling and at last goes down to the town to work in a cotton mill in order to help her unthrifty family. Here her beauty and sweetness attract an old playfellow and when she refuses to marry him, he tries to start a feud with a young mill owner as the vortex of the trouble. The unexpected fortune and happiness which come to the girl make up the rest of the story, which paints the Tennessee mountain life with sympathetic vividness.

This story tells how a little boy named Conrad went in search of the white merle when his artist father was losing his sight. At a conference the birds of the air decide to give him a pair of the wings of love, each bird supplying a single feather. With these wings Conrad flies over many countries and learns much of the birds who live in them. Claude and Chrysanthé Devereaux, twins, are the last of a race of marauding adventurers who for three hundred years have lived close to the temple and its mysterious rites. Major Sinclair comes from England to capture Claude, known as "The Babe," in some of his dishonest dealings. Chrysanthé masquerades as her brother, to shield him, but the Major, having fallen in love with the girl, penetrates her disguise, and has a sharp struggle between his sense of duty and his love. Adventures among savage tribes and innumerable hardships are the Major's and Chrysanthé's portion before the evil cloud hanging over the girl is dispelled and happiness is theirs.

Story tells of England in prehistoric times, when people lived in holes dug out of the ground. Tig, the hero, lives with his father and mother in their burrow in the ground in the "cold-time," and camps in the forests and on the hillsides in the "hot-time." All his adventures in hunting, fishing, and in war, until he grows up, are told. Some intermediate chapters tell how three modern boys, who have been hearing about Tig, try to lead the same kind of life, and how they enjoyed it.

The Publishers' Weekly

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT

August 6, 1910

The editor is not responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

Publishers should send books promptly for weekly record and descriptive annotation, if possible in advance of publication. The Record of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

HOT WEATHER OPPORTUNITIES.

WE are ready to admit that the months of August and September are trying times for the bookseller. He is not only expected to make up for the departure from the city of a large part of the buying public, but he must also combat the lethargic influence of the weather upon those who remain at home. Unusual methods only can stimulate buying during the summer months, and it is a flattering tribute to judicious advertising that the former dull summer months once so dreaded by merchants have developed into satisfactory business periods.

One of the things that may be depended upon to bring business during the next two months is reasonable prices on seasonable merchandise. August is a month in which to unload every dollar's worth of distinctively summer stock, that is, everything—except the regular stock of copyright books that may be counted upon to sell all the year round—that will not sell during the remainder of the season at regular prices. Generally speaking, it is better to get the money out of such merchandise, even though the bookseller must in some instances stand a small loss, than to carry over these goods, taking chances on their desirability, and the market conditions, at the opening of another season. It is better to have the money to invest in other goods where it is likely to turn itself two or three times than to have it locked up in unseasonable merchandise, the carrying over of which under ordinary conditions can be nothing but an expense. And when the time comes for this general cleaning out of summer goods, the bookseller might better not do his price cutting on the installment plan as the season wanes. He must take into account what it is worth to him to have the use of the money that is locked up in the summer goods; consider what competitors are likely to do along the same lines, and calculate the probable demand for the class of goods he is selling and then make cuts that will bring the desired results. In going down to the bottom price at once the dealer is much more likely to discourage those who would follow him than if he were to make a little cut at the beginning, which any competitor could easily beat without going below cost. The bookseller must not regard cost as a "dead line" over which he must not step; he must not hesitate to go a good bit below cost on goods with which he is overloaded or on little lots that he wishes soon to see the last of. It is most necessary for the merchant with a limited capital to keep every dollar of it at work; and he cannot do this if he carries over from one summer to another any considerable quantity of merchandise.

In arranging for clearance sales it is advisable to avoid advertising anything at cost, because if the article advertised happens to be one on which the dealer makes an unusually large profit, the customer is likely to reason that the percentage of profits is the same all through the dealer's business, and that he is charging higher prices than he need to or ought to, and possibly higher prices than his competitors. It is not desirable to give the general public any insight as to the cost of goods, because not one in a hundred—or in five hundred, for that matter—will reason correctly about it or take into account the other costs which the merchant has to pay out of his own gross profits.

If the bookseller cannot do better he might fill up the dull days with planning his fall campaign. He might figure on the condition of his stock; arrange to dispose of old goods and gauge the trade in his vicinity in respect to its needs next season. In this way alone the bookseller might make the hot weather pay for itself in future profits that had their origin in his summer agitation.

THE Office of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is gathering material for a directory of noteworthy private libraries, mentioning in each case the collector's specialty, if known. The material for this list has been furnished by many special local correspondents throughout the country, most of them not directly associated with bookselling. The directory will probably be issued towards the end of the year.

Such a list will, of course, be invaluable to booksellers, of both new and second hand books, doing business by mail, and every additional name received makes it just so much more valuable.

Booksellers who may desire to contribute, if not their mailing lists of collectors, at least the names of all important collectors generally well known in the trade, collectors themselves desiring inclusion in the Directory, and any other friends who may be able to give us additional entries, are invited to send names (with addresses and specialties) to the Office of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, addressing same to Directory Editor.

THE STRUGGLES OF EMBRYO AUTHORSHIP.

IN the August Bookman Frederick Taber Cooper begins a series of articles on "The Craftsmanship of Writing." This first, "The Inborn Talent," points out the difficulties on the hard road to be gone under such captions as "The Author's Knowledge of His Work," "The Anomalous Position of Literature" and "Schools of Technique."

Coincidentally with Mr. Cooper's advice to would-be writers—which throws a pretty heavy weight on the "Don't" side—Upton Sinclair, in the current issue of The Independent has a symposium on the suggested subsidization of literature. As might have been expected, opinion, on the part of the dozen odd authors who replied, is divided. Most of the protest, however, is not as to desirability, but as to practicability.

What he has in mind, Mr. Sinclair states, is "a permanent endowment, analogous to the 'Nobel Fund.' Its purpose would be the encouragement of vital creative literary work, by the establishment of scholarships or prizes, to be given for a period of two or three years, with the possibility of continuance if the candidate's work should make it seem worth while."

H. G. Wells "wishes very much that such scheme were possible," but points out that the "insurmountable objection" would lie "in the nature of selecting juries; they invariably become timid and narrow and seek refuge in practical, academic and moral tests that invariably exclude the real men of genius. Consider the way in which the Nobel prizes are being distributed, as rewards for longevity among the securely famous; and consider the life-long exclusions by the French Academy and the London Athenæum Club of some of the most brilliant French and English writers. On the other hand, you may easily raise up against the struggling real men of genius a class of subsidized rivals who will undersell him with all the prestige the prizes suggested would confer."

John Bigelow is "indisposed to degrade the literary art by lending my name to the organization of an Order of Mendicants to cultivate it."

William De Morgan is undecided. Arnold Bennett also thinks very well of the plan, providing a proper selection of judges can be secured.

"It takes three generations," says Eden Philpotts, "not three judges, to decide for a real, live, new form and weave the laurel. The big men who die young cannot expect to see their genius crowned; while those who are tough enough to weather the adverse tide and reach three score and ten—a Rodin, a Monet, a Wordsworth—do the trick. It is a matter of chance, the quality of the physical and mental machine, the blood in the veins, the way genius spends its spare time. I don't much believe in making the road smooth—even if we could. Every thinker must suffer from man. It is a test of original thought. The new is only born out of pain."

Bliss Carmen admits that "a little hardship is good for every man at the beginning of his career, no doubt. Gives tone to his moral system, and tempers his character. But," he adds, "a continuity of it is crushing."

Charles Edward Russell and Stewart Edward White would exclude fiction from consideration. Fiction now receives sufficient reward, and there is too much of it, anyway; "but poetry at least is too exquisite an art to be dragged about in the mire."

To Jack London the plan is totally inadequate to remedy present day conditions; to Henry Van Dyke the present Nobel Fund, etc., are already doing the proposed work adequately.

Frederick Van Eeden also asks: "Is it desirable that true genius be relieved of care? Would men like De Foe, Dickens, Carlyle, Meredith, De Balzac have written better if they were always kept free from struggle? Was not often financial need the origin of high-class production? Is not often the suffering and neglect a purgatory out of which the strong mind comes strengthened and fireproof? Is it not often wholesome for a creative mind to join in the common labor for subsistence?"

The discussion is at least an interesting one.

COPYRIGHT PROTECTION AGAINST MOVING PICTURE INFRINGEMENT.

THE French Court of Cassation has rendered an important decision in a suit for copyright infringement brought by Georges Courteline, the dramatist, against the proprietors of a moving picture show.

The dramatist had visited a moving picture show, in the course of which he saw a series of pictures which he felt sure were reproductions of his own farce, "Boubouroche." He brought an action against the proprietors and alternately won and lost in the courts. The case finally came before the Court of Cassation, which declared that "to produce a play on the bioscope without the dramatist's authorization" will be an infringement of copyright.

The court did not decide in favor of M. Courteline, however. The dramatist was mistaken, it declared; the scenes were not at all like those of his play. Although losing his own case in this instance, the dramatist has succeeded in gaining a victory for his profession.

In rejecting his claim the Judges decided that every author is entitled to protection against the reproduction of the scenes of his work on the cinematograph without words. The plot and its situation belongs to him obviously, as well as the dialogue, and to tell in dumb show, by means of moving pictures, a story which is his property is as equally piracy as stealing the words would be.

OBITUARY NOTES.

EDWARD LINLEY SAMBOURNE, the chief cartoonist of Punch, died Wednesday. He was born in London on January 4, 1845, and educated at the City of London School and at Chester College. At the age of 16 he went to work as gentleman apprentice at the marine engine works of John Penn & Son at Greenwich. In April, 1867, his first small drawing appeared in Punch, and he continued to contribute to the paper during the remainder of his life. Mark Lemon encouraged Sambourne to contribute his first drawing. He was formerly co-cartoonist with Sir John Tenniel, and succeeded him as chief cartoonist on January 1, 1901. Among the books illustrated by Sambourne are "New Sandford and Merton," 1872; "Our Autumn Holiday on French Rivers," 1874, and Charles Kingsley's "Water Babies," 1885. Sambourne's marvellous power over line, probably unexcelled in all Europe, once drew the remark from G. F. Watts that to possess it he would willingly sacrifice his ability as a painter.

GILBERT BROWNELL BALCH, long prominent in the publishing trade in Boston, died on Sunday at his country home, "The Knolls," in Topsfield, after a prolonged illness which in the past two or three months had taken a more serious form, so that his death was not unexpected. Mr. Balch was born in Topsfield on Feb. 9, 1856, the son of Humphrey and Hannah Prince (Bradstreet) Balch. His mother was a direct descendant of Governor Bradstreet.

Mr. Balch graduated from Dartmouth in 1877 and from Andover Theological Seminary in 1881. He then entered the ministry actively, and for a few years preached at Kingston, N. H. Ill health compelled him to relinquish this work and later, with restored health, he determined not to continue in the ministry and instead entered the book publishing business in Boston. With his brother, Edward P. Balch, he formed the house of Balch Brothers Company, successors to Martin Garrison & Company, whom they bought out. Gilbert B. Balch was president and treasurer of his company. Their place of business long has been in Bromfield street.

FRANK DEXTER WHITCOMB, widely known for the past fifty or more years through his connection with the Oliver Ditson music publishing house, at its stores in Boston and Chicago, died Monday, July 25, at his home on Second street, Woburn, Mass. Mr. Whitcomb was born in Boston, on Belknap street (now Joy street), on July 23, 1842, and graduated from the Dwight School, Boston, in 1856, and was awarded a Franklin Medal. Mr. Whitcomb retired from the Ditson company service, on account of ill health, some two years ago. His last position in the Ditson employ was that of classifying and assembling musical works adapted and required for special church festival services and for use at occasional civil or anniversary celebrations. He combined a broad knowledge as to compositions and composers with a personal taste and love for music as an art. Probably few, if any, persons in similar musical employ have been more helpful to vocalists and musicians generally than was Mr. Whitcomb. In December, 1870, he was married to Emma Caroline Bean, daughter of Moses C. Bean of Woburn. Mrs. Whitcomb and a daughter, Alice J., are survivors.

PERSONAL NOTES.

ARTHUR CHAFFEE, who has been with John Wanamaker for the past three years, has resigned to become the stationery buyer for Gimbel Brothers' new store in New York.

JOHN D. ROLLAND, formerly manager of the Eagle Book Store, Reading, Pa., has resigned to take charge of the commercial stationery department of the Harpels stationery store, at Lebanon, Pa.

A. M. LEVY, well known to the trade in his former connection with the Jones Dry Goods Co., of Kansas City, has accepted a position as buyer and manager of the book and stationery departments of the Simpson-Crawford Co., New York City. He will also act as buyer for the stationery department of the 14th Street Store.

SYDNEY AVERY, for many years the buyer of the retail book department of Dodd, Mead & Company, has just returned from a well-deserved vacation of several months in Jamaica and the West Indies to take a position in the retail department of Brentano's. Those in the trade who know him best and realize his enthusiasm and capacity for hard work can prophesy for him nothing but success in his new connections.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

OUR printer doesn't read Meredith, and "Araminta" slipped our proofreading.

THE estate left by Dr. Furnivall, the famous Shakesperian critic, author, philologist and humanitarian, one of the foremost scholars of England, has been "proved"; and, we learn from an English review, is valued at £796. No comment, it would seem, is necessary.

LEWIS WRIGHT, known to poultry fanciers the world over, has now had his name coupled with his large quarto poultry book, which will hereafter be known as "Wright's New Book of Poultry." It is published by Cassell & Company.

MISS LUCY H. HUMPHREY has compiled another poetic guide book. "The Poetic New-World," published by Henry Holt & Company, a collection of verse relating to America, just as her companion volume, "The Poetic Old-World" dealt with Europe.

THE latest addition to the flood of cheap books in England is Ward, Lock & Co.'s World Library of Famous Books, to include, they say, "all the great standard works of Fiction, Biography, History, Philosophy, Research, Essays, etc." an attempt, evidently, to compete at a cheaper price with editions like the Everyman's Library.

To their Pocket Edition of Dante's "Inferno," "Purgatory and Paradise," and Milton's "Paradise Lost," which are issued in flexible full leather with the original illustrations by Gustave Doré, Cassell & Company will add in the Fall Dryden's "Æneid of Virgil," edited and with an introduction by Professor Alfred J. Church and containing 18 full-page illustrations by Wal Paget.

A NOTEWORTHY book which is announced for early publication by Thomas Y. Crowell & Company is Dr. Charles W. Eliot's "Durable Satisfactions of Life." The well-rounded career of the venerable President Emeritus of Harvard entitles him to speak with authority on what goes to make up the truest happiness in this world, and his opinions as set forth in this work are certain to be given due weight.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. publish something a little out of their ordinary run in John Foster Carr's "Guida degli Stati Uniti per l'Immigrante Italiano" ("Guide to the U. S. for Italian Immigrants"). It is a small paper-bound 12mo, fully illustrated in half-tone, written in an exceedingly practical vein, and published under the auspices of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution (of Conn.) Have you an Italian colony in your town? or do you come in touch with Italian immigrants?

G. K. CHESTERTON is said to have entered upon a new literary field in a series of detective stories. Strange to say, his hero is not a Sherlock Holmes or a Lecoq, but a gentle little parish priest who uses his knowledge of human nature gained in his religious work to unravel mysterious crimes which have baffled the police. These stories, which are to be first published in serial form, are to begin with one entitled "The Innocence of Father Brown."

As incomprehensible as the basis of choice which omits a pre-eminent name like Kipling's from the proposed English Academy of Letters is the fact that he has received no titular honors, though many lesser men have been knighted and "ordered." It is quite possible he doesn't care for such things; yet the omission calls attention anew to the fact that England's formal literary honors have always been more or less strangely placed.

BRENTANO'S issue this week a story telling the extraordinary and daring adventures that fell to the lot of Vicomte de Jan, during the Terror in France. H. C. Bailey, author of "The God of Clay," is the writer of this historical novel, which he calls "Storm and Treasure," and in which his hero acquits himself with great gallantry and joyous spirit, making him a worthy companion to the unusual and fascinating heroine.

IN last Sunday's New York Herald "A Candid Publisher Opens His Heart and Reveals Some of the Secret Arts that Are the Stock in Trade of the Crafty Maker of Books." He does this under the full page caption "Making the Best Seller Sell." Although there is probably nothing in the article which will be news to either publisher or bookseller, it gives the general public a very readable and fairly accurate idea of what the process we call "publishing" really is, so far at least as popular fiction is concerned. The bookseller's position on the net price question is fairly given.

OUTING PUBLISHING COMPANY have just issued, in Dr. Charles Stuart Moody's "Backwoods Surgery and Medicine" a handy book for the prudent lover of the woods who doesn't expect to be ill but believes in being on the safe side. Commonsense methods for the treatment of the ordinary wounds and accidents are described—setting a broken limb, reducing a dislocation, caring for burns, cuts, etc. Practical remedies for camp diseases are recommended, as well as the ordinary indications of the most probable ailments. A list of the necessary medical and surgical supplies is included.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY has just issued the following new scientific books: "A Treatise of Electrical Theory and the Problem of the Universe," by G. W. De Tunzelmann; "Experimental Investigations on the Power Required to Drive Rolling Mills," from the German of J. Puppe; "An Elementary Text-Book on Mechanical Drawing," by J. E. Jagger, and Volume V of the new edition of Jamieson's "Applied Mechanics and Mechanical Engineering." The fourth series of "The Harvey Lectures," being those delivered before The Harvey Society of New York during the season of 1908-1909, is also just issued by the same house.

DANA ESTES COMPANY announce some interesting additions to their list of publications. Laura E. Richards has written a sequel to the "Wooing of Calvin Parks," called "Up to Calvin's." The same old lovable down East characters will be met with again and further incidents in their lives recorded. A thrilling narrative of savage warfare and treasure-hunting in Patagonia, by Owen Rhoscomyl, author of "Battlement and Tower," will be found in "A Scout's Story," a tale which the reader follows almost breathlessly from start to finish. Lewis B. Miller's "The White River Raft," a story, largely true, of a logging trip into the flooded forests of Arkansas, followed by an eventful raft voyage down the Mississippi, is a book full of adventure and excitement.

A. C. McCLURG & COMPANY have ready the long delayed "Diary of James K. Polk," an exact reprint of the original diary which is now owned by the Chicago Historical Society. Never before has this very valuable source-book for American history been made available for all students. Professor Garrison used it in writing the seventeenth volume of his "The American Nation," and considered it one of the most important documents belonging to the period. The diary was kept by Polk from 1845-1849, the years of his presidency, and shows the integrity and forceful character of the man, a radically different impression from that which his contemporaries left of him.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY announce for publication in August the following juveniles: Edward Fraser's "Bellerophon;" N. Hammarström's "The Adventures of Two Ants;" "Augustus," by the Countess of Jersey; John Lang's "The Land of the Golden Trade;" and "Uncle Wisdom's Parlor Tour," by John Lea. E. Nesbit, in "Harding's Luck," again tells a story in which fact and fancy are delightfully interwoven. For the tiny tots are W. Mord's "Echo! Echo! Echo!," "Was It a Dream?," and "Nursery Favorites," all illustrated in color and bound in boards, as is also "Mercury, the Story-Teller," by the same author. Mary Macleod's "Tiny True Tales," and A. Steedman's "A Little Child's Life of Jesus" also appeal to the younger children, for whom are likewise G. Wiedersim's "Fido Kitty Puss" and "Baby's Day," and W. P. Pycraft's "The Animal Why Book." G. Sowerby's edition of "Grimm's Fairy Tales" is a well illustrated collection of these old favorites. "Stokes Wonder Book," so successful last year, is to be issued again this year. H. M. Thoma's "Indian Tales and Dreams" and Clara Williams's "Puzzle Pictures of Farmyard Friends," and "The Children's Store," both in the Glue Series, complete the list of August juveniles.

PICK-UPS.

A WELL-DRESSED young man was standing outside a bookseller's shop in Charing Cross Road, closely examining one of Balzac's works, illustrated by Gustave Doré. "How much is this Balzac?" he asked an assistant outside.

"Twenty-five shillings," was the reply.

"Oh, that's far too much. I must see the manager about a reduction," continued the prospective customer, and, suiting the action to the word, he took up the book and went into the shop.

Approaching the bookseller, he took the book from under his arm and asked what he would give for it. "Seven shillings highest offer," he was told.

The offer was accepted—the man took his money and left.

"Well," queried the assistant later, after the man had gone, "were you able to hit it off with the gentleman, sir?"

"Oh, yes. I managed to get another copy of that edition of Balzac for seven shillings."

Then the bookseller went out to lodge a complaint with the police.

NELSON'S BIBLE COMPETITION

Report and Decision of the Judges

The successful contestants in Nelson's Bible competition are as follows:

1st Prize, $100.00	Mr. Charles Kenson	D. C. Cook Pub. Co. New York City
2d " 65.00	Mr. L. A. Keating	Amer. Baptist Pub. Soc. Philadelphia, Pa.
3d " 50.00	Mr. Ephraim Tucker	Tucker Book and Stat. Co. Redlands, Cal.
4th " 25.00	Mr. H. P. Burningham	Edmond D. Brooks Minneapolis, Minn.
5th " 10.00	Mr. Victor Lindquist	Carl A. Lindquist Red Oak, Ia.
6th " 10.00	Mr. Morris Sanford	Geo. Mullins Co. Cedar Rapids, Ia.
7th " 10.00	Mr. Geo. A. Lord	Geo. A. Lord & Son Painesville, Ohio
8th " 10.00	Mr. Wm. J. Neal	C. H. Lugg Coudersport, Pa.
9th " 10.00	Miss Dora Reisch	Starr S. S. Supply Co. Toledo, Ohio
10th " 10.00	Miss M. E. Rogers	H. Taylor Rogers Asheville, N. C.

The unusual excellence of the papers made it very difficult to grade them, and it was only after they had been through four examinations that final decision was reached. The very high percentages of the successful papers are a noteworthy feature of the competition. It is but fair to say that of the large number of papers sent in, 128 showed a standing of over 80 per cent.

For the keen interest shown, and for the many expressions of good will and appreciation, Thomas Nelson & Sons wish to thank and congratulate, not only the successful contestants, but also those who worked as hard, if with a less degree of success. The great interest manifested by the book trade in this competition is evidenced by the large number who participated, and shows conclusively that the bookseller today is alert and progressive, and is looking for "the best things" for his constituency.

“HAVOC”

an absorbing story of love, international politics, underground diplomacy and a man's desperate fight for his country's honor. “Havoc” is admittedly Mr. Oppenheim's best story, and the liberal advertising which the publishers contemplate assures an especially large sale of this issue. In addition this number will contain a complete novellette by Wyndham Martyn, entitled “Daphne;” “The Test,” by Fred Jackson; “When the Half-God's Go,” by Van Tassel Sutphen; “The Weak Brother,” by Gouverneur Morris; “The Passionate Pilgrim,” by Mrs. Oscar Beringer and others.

The Publishers' Trade List Annual

Thirty-eighth year 1910 of publication

Price, $2.00

(If ordered and paid for prior to September 1, $1.50 per copy)

The catalogues of all the publishers of importance are combined in this massive volume, which is supplied at nominal cost to secure its widest distribution. It is an indispensable reference book that no one interested in books can afford to be without.

ONE BOOKSELLER'S METHOD.—A Suggestion

"It is supposed that all book sellers spend more or less for advertising in conducting their business and it is more or less conjecture just where their advertising does the most good.

"I am a believer that it pays to deal direct with the individual as well as maintain advertisements in the papers of the town or city in which you do business. If the book sellers would buy a copy of your Trade List Annual and place it in the home of some of their best customers, I don't believe there is any form of advertising that will bring as great results. I have done this and it has sold a great many books and I endorse it to book sellers generally.

"When you stop and think of the low price for this book, which remains in the home at least a year it makes but 3 cents a week for advertising, and this certainly is cheap enough. I believe if you would direct the attention of the book sellers to this valuable advertising medium by a campaign of advertising through your Trade Paper that it should result in one of the six best sellers between now and September 1st."

Yours respectfully,

Bridgeport, Conn.

H. H. JACKSON.
